

The Rembrandt House Museum in Amsterdam

Written by Holidays in Holland

Thursday, 24 February 2011 13:06 - Last Updated Thursday, 24 February 2011 13:23

The Rembrandt House Museum ("Rembrandthuis") is a house in Jodenbreestraat in Amsterdam, The Netherlands, where Rembrandt once lived and painted. Rembrandt purchased the house in 1639 and lived there until he went bankrupt in 1656, when all his belongings went on auction.

The house is now a museum. The museum houses a collection of etchings and drawings by the Dutch master painter Rembrandt van Rijn.